

When I decided to come to Woodbine Colony I had no special reason for it, except to have a change.

Since I am here I can say that I find real satisfaction in helping people less fortunate than myself. These mental deficient boys have souls as well as do we, and need someone to care for them and love them. Then too, there is a certain amount of satisfaction that I receive from helping this human being in small ways, such as showing interests in the things that they delight in, even if it is playing with blocks or etc.

The living quarters here are excellent, everything is new in the building where our Unit is, including the building

The food is very good, and plenty of it. I'd say, it is a wise choice for anyone to choose to come to an Institution of this sort
